RED PURGE?

Dispatches from the Far East-which may or may not be reliable-reveal that Red China is engaged in an extensive purge of Chinese who are resisting communism. This could develop into one of the greatest horrors of world history. There was a news story a few months ago to the effect that Moscow planned to reduce the population of China by 51,000,-:000 or more through famine and purge.

As nearly as the West can determine, guerilla forces have been growing, particularly in the southwestern provinces. serted and taken their troops with them. They are lightly armed, and food is a problem. Chiang Kai-Shek is trying to aid Some former Communist generals are reported to have dethem from Formosa, but his resources are limited.

It is revealed that Washington has again reversed itself and is sending arms to Chiang Kai-Shek, who is hated and detested by the New Dealers, the Washington boys who regard- and a definite fear among the rank ed the Chinese Communists as "agarian reformers."

Whether the guerilla movement has the support of a large number of Chinese cannot be ascertained. No doubt the *Communist purge has been launched with the object of putting so much fear into the Chinese that they will treat the "guerillas as outlaws.

If the United States is getting any aid to the Chinese guerillas, the fact has not be revealed. A real guerilla movement could tie up the Communists with so much local disorder that they would be hampered in their campaign to help Moscow with its international aggression. But there would be no guarantee that arms supplied to Chinese guerillas would not fall into the hands of the Communists.

WILL U. S. FIGHT ALONE?

When the United Nations was organized to guarantee world peace, the naive theory was that combined military world peace, the naive theory was that combined military tain the causes. Usually we popustrength of 50 nations was sufficient to prevent aggression by larly bunch them all together any county, and thus there could be no more war.

Those who opposed the United States entering a world organization said such an organization could not prevent war, and that the result would be U. S. involvement of interminable warfare in all parts of the globe. When South Korea was invaded and the United Nations Assembly called upon its members to give military aid, the United States alone responded with more than a token force. Two infantry battalions and a dozen warships have been tossed in by the United Kingdom. Australia, New Zealand, France, The Netherlands, Turkey and a few others have sent token forces. Greece, which has received $700,000,000 in U. S. aid in the last few years, sent 700 men-or one man for each million dollars of

As a result, if the United Nations, which is financed largely by the United States and provides a perfect base for Russian spies, is to be just another name for the United States, this organization is worse than worthless. If the United States must fight alone, the sooner Washington recognizes the fact

ROOFLESS BUREAUS

The wartime emergency agencies are expanding the govpernment payroll in Washington at the rate of 200,000 workers a year. But there is no office space available for the new agencies. Several apartment buildings have been taken over by the General Service Administration for conversion to office was about two years old, she slept beautifully both day and night." space. But this does not solve the space shortage, for every apartment converted to office space only aggravates the hous-Ing shortage, which has been acute for ten years.

On average, the government agencies require 100 square feet of office space for every employee. Commenting on the Also a warm drink of milk might Influx of roofless bureaus and homeless bureaucrats, Congressman Robert B. Chipperfield, of Illinois, calls for sharp economies in the non-defense agencies, to offset wartime expansion in the military departments. "The government must find about 20,000,000 square feet of floor space for working equarters for this new army of administrative helpers. This means the Public Building Service must provide additional space equal to 10 Empire State buildings."

Official reports show that the federal government already occupies 340,500,000 square feet of floor space throughout the country, Chipperfield explained. All that space is equal to 170 Empire State buildings, each 102 stories tall.

"Now our bureaus must find 10 more Empire State buildings to house the new emergency agencies—a difficult assignment at a time when building materials are very scarce.

"Common sense demands that new federal employment in the war effort be offset by rigid economies in the non-war bureaus, but this far there has been no move by the Truman administration to realize substantial economies in the nondefense programs. Hence the government faces a real crisis in office space for the 200,000 new workers now being added to the federal payrolls."

Disruption Of Industry

It might be possible to produce all the tanks the Army would require in six months. But this would be at the cost of frantic and even chaotic disruption of indus-try. The objective is to place tank orders to bring about a steady stream of tanks from plants operating on a one-shift basis. Production could be doubled almost overnight by adding two extra

Expansionism

(By HOLMES ALEXANDER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—Hardly a man is now alive who wishes that Americans had stood pat on the 13-State Union of 1787, but a lot of stand-patters will be disturbed when Senator Kefauver of Tennessee reintroduces the Atlantic Union resolution which was pigeon-holed by the 81st Congress.

"I think we have the votes this time," Kefauver says. "I've been rounding up support, and I honestly believe that we'll pass the resolution in the present Congress."

The only thing to prevent it is a stand-patter attitude both among The only thing to prevent it is a stand-patter attitude both among the Senators and oddly, enough, in the State Department. Luckily this attitude did not prevail in the early years of the 19th Century when the expansionist spirit that is imbedded in the nature of our Federal Union began to express itself. Had the American system of government been a static, self-contained and self-sufficient form of statecraft, the great majority of Americans would not be Americans today. The flags of Spain, France, Mexico and of the Texas Republic might still be flying all the way from Florida to California. be flying all the way from Florida to California.

History Seeks To Repeat

Well, history is struggling to repeat itself, although the script is studded with modernisms. All during the last century our borders moved westward to fill up a number of political vacuums. Here in the mid-20th Century our destiny calls us eastward, although we don't like to say it just that way. But there does exist a political near-vacuum between Ireland and the Iron Curtain. It is a vacuum which cries out to be filled by the American system of Federal Union cries out to be filled by the American system of Federal Union.

Don't expect Kefauver, or any of the 20-odd co-sponsors of the Senate resolution, to put the matter quite so bluntly. They'd sound like jingoists if they did. They'd scare the hides off European nitwits who still believe that all expansionism is imperialist expansionism. Such talk about American "destiny" would set the echoes ringing in many empty Senatorial domes where the fear of "foreigners" is practically psychotic and the same talk too respectatory on the frozen tically psychotic. And the same talk, too, rasps hard on the frozen ideology of the State Department where the concept of internationalism is all diplomacy, treaties, alliances and give-away programs.

Ought To Attract Attention But the Atlantic Union is none of these. It is simply the old American idea of an always-expandable Federal Union. It ought to attract the favorable attention of practically everybody who understands how America came to be the mighty nation that she is. It should frighten nobody, at home or abroad, who remembers that the ancestor of every native American was once a "foreigner." And especially in this day when diplomacy, treaties, alliances and give-away programs have been so mockingly unsuccessful, the Atlantic Union plan ought to receive the most rapt attention.

The sponsors of the plan tend to play down its magnitude, for they believe that people are afraid of new ideas that look too big. The sponsors say that the Kefauver resolution does nothing but "request" the President to call a convention which would "consider" drawing a Constitution to unite the U.S., Britain, Canada, France and the three Benelux countries.

Enormous Eventualities

Yes, but that's wonderful. And the virtue of the plan is not in its nodest beginnings but in its enormous eventualities. Carried to its ultimate success, this plan would expand the American system into a great capitalistic Republic of 400 million people with 80 per cent of the world's industrial capacity and nearly all of the scientific talents. It would solve the manpower problem of our defenses, and it would decentralize our vulnerability to A-bomb attack. It would confront the Soviet Empire with an utterly unconquerable land-mass and a virtually inexhaustible economy. But the best thing about the Atlantic Union is that it's really the American Union to all political intents and democratic purposes. Think it over and you'll find that the new expansionism is not much different from the one that made us what we are today.

The niche for a great discovery is still unfilled ... perhaps this future benefactor is growing or living in our midst. But Influenza and the Common Cold have eluded vast efforts to find cause and effective treatment. But the work goes on . . . in laboratories, in voluminous clinical records, in continuous, varied treatments, important advances are being made against these enemies. Facts are becoming known that will some day add up to victory over the deadly periodic threat of Influenza, and the everyday losses attributable to the cold.

Constant striving for improvement is an aim of our prescription department, too. Study, care and progressiveness are watchwords . . . so that we can better serve you and the medical profession.

SETH MYERS, secretary of the northwest division of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's clubs, writes that there are some new state senators and members in the house of representatives. They will be required to vote on outdoor legislation with which some of them may be unfamiliar. He says that the large majority of lawmakers pass laws for the good of the people as a whole, and if they are supplied with proper information will vote for constructive laws. He advises local sportsmen to contact their representatives in the legislature and request them to accept recommendations of the Federation's legislative committee, and not the advice of persons not fully competent to offer recommendations for outdoor legislation.

The Bruins edged the Chicago Blackhawks last night, 5 to 4, and moved one point ahead of the idle New York Rangers.

Milt Schmidt, Boston's veteran center, scored the winning goal— his second of the game—at 15-56 of the last period after the contest had been deadlocked three times.
The Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs bunched all

Duquesne started a new winning streak by beating LaSalle, 53-43, last night in Pittsburgh.

Visitor John George tallied 16 points to top all scorers, But a poor shooting display in the second half led to LaSalle's downfall. The explorers made good on only 17 of 82 shots during the evening. Duquesne, victor in 11 of its last 12 games, sank 21 of 58 attempts. The Dukes' 10-game winning streak was busted Monday night by Cincinnati.
